

ELIOT'S OLD HOME WEEK PLANS BEING PERFECTED

Old Academy Reunion and Visit from Governor Scheduled

One of the biggest features of Eliot Academy, at which it is hoped Eliot's Old Home Week, which begins on Monday, Aug. 7, will be a reunion of the scholars of the old academy. The reunion will be held on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 8, in the Grange hall, and will be followed by a banquet in the evening. It is likely that an alumni association will be formed upon this occasion.

On Wednesday there will be a band concert and collation in connection with the exercises. Governor Frederick W. Plaisted of Maine and other distinguished guests are expected to be present as speakers.

The committee of arrangements are quietly perfecting other plans which altogether ensure an eclipse of former Old Home Week celebrations by that now forth coming.

PEDDLER SHOT IN ARGUMENT AT NOTTINGHAM

Patterson Puts a Bullet Into Michael's Neck

Assailant Is Brought to This City by Deputy Sheriff Shaw

The people of Nottingham were at 10 o'clock and it was nearly midnight before Prosecuting Attorney Guptill was notified of the affair. He immediately ordered Deputy Sheriff Wilbur M. Shaw to the scene. Shaw found Patterson at his home, and placing him under arrest brought him to this city. Michael was removed to the hospital at Exeter and is in a dangerous condition. Dr. Whitney of Northwood and other physicians attempted to locate the bullet today but were not successful.

COOK ON THE BACK PORCH

With one of these absolutely safe NEW PERFECTION OIL STOVES, you can cook with the fresh morning air all around you independent of pipes and gas fixtures. A good many women are using this plan. It keeps the kitchen cooler, takes little fuel and saves the dread of each morning in the kitchen. The fuel these stoves use is surprisingly small in quantity and low in cost. Don't swelter and ruin your complexion for a few cents a day.

OCEAN BOULEVARD GETS LONG NEEDED ATTENTION

Engineer to Come Here and Estimate Extent of Repairs

State Engineer Harry Hill has been authorized by the governor and council to make the numerous and needed repairs on the Ocean boulevard, for which an appropriation of $5000 was recently made as stated in this paper. Mr. Hill will come to Portsmouth Saturday to make a thorough examination of the road and determine just what work will have to be done in order to put the highway in first-class shape.

It has also been voted to oil the macadam of the Merrimack Valley road from Franklin south. It is expected that the work on both of the roads will commence some time the first of the coming week.

The bids for sections of the roads in the towns of Hooksett, Merrimack and Bedford will be opened tomorrow at the office of the state engineer, and as lively competition has developed among a large number of contractors, it is expected that the state will receive very favorable prices.

Engineer Hill states that the situation in regard to the highway of the state was thoroughly discussed at the recent meeting of the governor and council and a general policy in regard to the same agreed upon. The extent and character of the policy cannot be ascertained as it is in no way concrete and of a rather indefinite nature.

It is stated that Governor Bass, in an interview with C. O. Robinson, manager of the White Mountain Branch of the Touring club of America, expressed himself as heartily in favor of the improvement and extension of the New Hampshire highways. He is also quoted as having expressed a desire to see a road commission in the state which should not change under the different administrations and expressed himself in favor of a patrol system through which the roads should be divided into five mile sections and placed under the direction of a competent man who would see that his particular section kept in order.

The Touring club has offered to lend every assistance to the government in the matter of road improvement.

SHOALS CABLE CONNECTS ISLANDS WITH MAINLAND

Summer Visitors Help Pull End Ashore This Morning

The wrecking steamer Susie D., and a tug and a derrick barge, all of the Betts wrecking company, arrived off Wallis Sands late Thursday afternoon with the Isles of Shoals cable. At about 5 o'clock this morning the work of stretching it over the seven miles of ocean bottom between the Sands and Appledore Island was begun. Before night it is expected that connections will be made. The work is in charge of Robert Morton of New York, president of the company, and Thomas C. Leakey of this city. Capt. Selden F. Wells of the Wallis Sands life saving station, William Randall, a surfman at the station and some twenty cottagers assisted in hauling the end of the cable ashore.

The new cable has four conductors and will be used with for telephone and telegraph.

FOREST FIRES DROWNED OUT BY DOWNPOUR

Thursday evening's drizzling rain effectually quieted all apprehension as to forest fires. While Rockingham county has been a lighter sufferer from this plague than York county, fires here have done damage to the young growth amounting to many hundreds of dollars in the course of the present drought, and the smoke from them has come to be almost a daily scene. In spite of the careful watch being kept they originate in the least expected manner and in many instances the origin is unaccounted for.

The worst fire, and one which is said to have done the greatest amount of damage, was between Newfields and Newmarket, and to the standing growth of George L. Chase of Newfields and Edwin S. Carpenter of Newmarket.

A fire started Wednesday afternoon in the woods along the bank of the Squamscott river, and for a time seemed likely to do damage to summer camps in that section. A camp owned by James H. Patterson of Exeter was in the path of the flames and would probably have been a victim to them had it not been for Willard T. Ellis of Boston, a summer resident of Newfields, who swam the river with a pail and shovel and extinguished the fire before it reached the cottages.

A noticeable fact is that the section known as the "Oaklands," which are between Exeter and Epping, has been free from fires this summer and spring. Probably not for years, if ever, has this tract of dense woodland been without its annual visit of the flames which do damage to hundreds of dollars worth of property.

LIGHTNING STORM CAUSES DAMAGE

A short but heavy thunder storm passed over this city shortly after eight o'clock on Thursday evening, and it was accompanied by a vivid display of lightning and a heavy fall of rain.

The rain did not last over a half hour, but it will do considerable good to the sunburned lawns and fields.

The lightning caused no end of trouble for the electric light company and the telephone company. The latter had over fifty lines burned out, greatly impairing the service for the night.

The Rockingham Light and Power Company had all kinds of trouble. Time after time lightning came into the power plant and burned out the switches and fuses, and at one time started a fire back of the switch-board. This made it necessary to shut off all the power for a time leaving the city in darkness. Shortly after another circuit was burned out and a portion of the system including this office, was in darkness for a half hour.

A bolt struck the high tension line at Great Bay, and put that line out of commission. This is the feed for Dover, Somersworth and Rochester, and all the cars on that line were stalled about two hours.

There was some trouble at the Hampton end, but it caused only a short delay.

The local street railway was not effected to any extent.

The car service on the Atlantic Shore railway was badly affected. On the Eliot line a car went off the track at Welsh Corner at eight o'clock, and it was 11.45 when the car was back on the track and had reached this city. On the other division the cars were from an hour to two hours late.

At Kittery the house of Orman R. Paul was struck by lightning and the bath room wrecked. A bolt also cut the electric light cable near the Neal mansion on Government street, leaving the town in darkness.

The storm was terrific at York Beach. Half the size of large marbles fell for ten minutes and came with such force as to break windows in the cottages along Long Sands. The Churchill residence was struck by lightning with only slight damage to the outside.

THINKS MAINE BLOWN UP FROM OUTSIDE

Lewis Nixon, the naval architect who designed the Indiana and Oregon type of battleship, commenting yesterday on the news from the Maine, said:

"There has never," he said "been the slightest doubt in my mind about the cause of that vessel's destruction. In the first place, knowing the care with which the magazines of our men of war are safe guarded, there was every reason to suppose that unless other powder made under the same condition had been found unstable the explosion was not due to undue heat or powder deterioration.

"The careful examination made by the very competent board appointed which met on the lighthouse tender Mangrove, a vessel I had built, was most convincing. As the members of the board were personal friends, I talked over the matter afterward with them, especially with Naval Constructor John B. Hoover, U. S. N., with whom I had many opportunities for discussing the question, as he was an inspector at my shipyard for several years.

New Ambassador to Berlin May Be Chosen by President Taft From the Diplomatic Ranks.

One of the men whose pictures are here printed may be Dr. Hill's successor as American ambassador to Germany. Announcement of the appointment is expected during August, and it is believed that President Taft will make his selection from among the present diplomatic ranks. Jackson at Havana and Minister Charles H. Sherrill at Buenos Aires, Argentina.

"When I myself visited the scene of the wreck in Havana Harbor I was struck with the amount of the destruction, and concluded that very probably the magazine was exploded by the firing of the mine, as I rather doubted the possession of a mine capable of such total destruction, though convinced it started from the outside.

"The most convincing fact bearing on the explosion was told me by Capt. Stevens of the Ward liner Havana. He said he was sitting on board the Havana after dinner and was looking directly at the Maine at the time of the explosion. She seemed to rise up forward. Wreckage began to fall on board his vessel. On the deck, one piece very near to him, there fell two very large pieces of thick cement.

"In order earlier vessels we laid quite a thick layer of cement on the bottom plating in the double bottom, so worked as to form water courses to the suction and to cover river heads. An explosion from the inside could not well account for the way the vessel was distorted and broken, though it could very naturally add enormously to the destruction, as the vessel's back was broken and she was lifted by the outside explosion.

"There is not much room for controversy. A mine powerful enough might have done all the damage. We shall possibly know what part was played by the ship's explosives.

POLICE NEWS.

There were thirty-eight arrests made on Thursday, and almost that number were held over night, making the biggest crowd since the new station was opened.

Twelve of the above were suspects arrested during the day, and they were marked safe keeping. Some are "hard looking fellows" attracted here by the muster.

There were five drunks among the bunch and a bunch of scuffers. The police on Thursday afternoon on a complaint raided the house of Charles Asay on Jefferson street, and Asay was placed under arrest charged with selling liquor and keeping a disorderly house. Sadie Story was arrested at the same time charged with larceny. The complaint was made that two sailors went to the house and the Story woman touched them for their roll.

Rae Morgan was arrested on Thursday on a statutory charge.

A SOLEMN MOMENT.

When the Great Mail Steamer Was Stopped in Mid-ocean.

The great steamship wavered; the screw revolved more slowly and gradually ceased to turn. There is something uncannily disquieting about an unmoving ship in the middle of the ocean, and for a few moments there were fearsome rumors among the second and third cabin passengers. The steersman, being nearer to the heart of things, understood what was going on. The deck stewards went about explaining, and as they explained the passengers moved to points of vantage. Then all was very quiet—quiet even for the sea.

A man whom the first cabin passengers knew to be a famous bishop stepped down from among them. A heavy, clumsy, gawky bundle was brought up. Over it the bishop, with bared and reverent head, intoned the service for those who are buried at sea. As the bishop spoke the words of committal, "We therefore commit his body to the deep, to be turned into corruption, looking for the resurrection of the body, when the sea shall give up its dead," a door in the bulwarks was lifted for the bundle and let down again. The ship began to move, sluggishly at first, then smoothly as was its wont, and the passengers went back to their games, their books and their lovemaking.

The greatest event in the dead stoker's career was over. He had stopped his majesty's mail.—Exchange.

A Cheerful Lie.

One time the late ameer of Afghanistan asked the English diplomatic agent at his court to give a description amid a circle of Afghan boys of the largest gun in England. The Englishman described the 100 ton gun, and when he had finished the ameer observed to his admiring subjects, "I have seen a gun the carriage of which was as large as the gun which has just been described to you." It would never do for an ameer to be astonished, much less to confess himself beaten.

One Idea Developed.

WELL KNOWN DOVER FARMER IS A SUICIDE

Jasper E. Hackett of Dover, one of the best known farmers in this section, committed suicide Thursday by shooting himself in the right side of the head with a 32-caliber revolver in the rear of his corn-shed at his home on the Back River road. He had driven to town early in the morning with vegetables and made his usual rounds among his customers, and was accompanied by one of his little daughters. The revolver, which is a new one, he is believed to have purchased in the morning, and soon after arriving home he walked out into his field and ended his life. Family troubles and despondency over the condition of his crops is said to be the cause for the deed.

Neighbors guarded the body until the arrival of Medical Referee F. L. Keay of Rochester, who was accompanied by Policeman Edward Young of Dover to the Hackett farm. The revolver and box it came in were found on the ground by the farmer's side.

Mr. Hackett, it is said, had several times of late threatened to take his life.

He was born in Dover, where he spent his entire life. His reputation for raising vegetables of the first quality was known far and wide, and for a number of years past he had been awarded first prizes at the Rochester and other fairs.

Mr. Hackett was aged 52 years, and besides a widow, who was formerly Mary Remick, he leaves three children and a sister, Inez Hackett. The body was turned over to Undertakers John H. Grimes & Son.

POSTOFFICE DYNAMITED

Jefferson, N. H. July 20.—Postmaster George G. Roberts was sleeping peacefully in the starlight on the piazza above the front of his post-office and general store, early today, when he was rudely awakened by an explosion below. He sprang to the piazza railing.

When he peered through the darkness over the side he found he was looking down into the shining barrel of a big revolver. It was held at arm's length by a masked man who stood on the gravel driveway in front of the store. The postmaster jumped back into his house.

His family had been awakened by the explosion. There was a hurried council, and it was speedily determined that burglars were looting the postoffice safe. The postmaster decided to go below. He ran down the front and was about to throw open the door when three shots in rapid succession crashed through the wooden door.

The postmaster ran upstairs and down to the back door. His hand had hardly touched the knob when a bullet pierced the wood just below his head. Then he tried to get out the side door, but that also was guarded. Caged up in his own home with his frightened family, the postmaster had to wait until the robbers went away.

When he went to his postoffice it was a wreck. The safe had been dynamited and then ransacked. About $2000 in cash and stamps was stolen.

The only clue to the whereabouts of the burglars, according to County Solicitor Jacobs, is a report to the effect that a mysterious automobile was seen coming down a mountain road on the outskirts of the town last night. It carried no lights.

The solicitor suspects that the same band of robbers that broke into the Twin Mountain postoffice kept Postmaster Roberts a prisoner today while they robbed his postal station.

There are many people from all parts of the country summering here, and the news of the daring burglary caused a great deal of excitement.

HAVERHILL GIRL SUES FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Haverhill, July 20.—A suit of $50,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry has been begun against John

A. Newcomb, a prominent retired business man of Haverhill, by Miss Flora M. Roberts a shoe maker in one of Haverhill's shoe factories. The damages asked are among the largest ever sought in Massachusetts. The attachment in the suit was filed Tuesday at Salem by her lawyer, Frederick W. Ryan of Lynn.

John A. Newcomb has been retired from business for many years, and had a large fortune left him by his father who was a leading manufacturer and lives at 461 Water street, A true in Haverhill. He is 58 years year ago his cousin Charles R. Newcomb, was appointed conservator of his estate.

Miss Roberts is a very attractive young woman of about 25 years. She lives at 17 Summit street, Haverhill. Her declaration in the suit has not yet been filed, so that it is not known what her case will be. Her attorney when seen today refused to give any information.

It is understood, however, that Miss Roberts will say that she has been on friendly terms with Mr. Newcomb for 10 years and that the promise to marry was made two years ago. At that time she asserted he gave her a $250 diamond ring and made the actual request for her hand which was granted.

All through their acquaintance and until quite recently she says he had been very attentive to her and they had been seen together many times in public. A month or so ago, however, he seemed no longer willing to carry out his part of the contract and Miss Roberts was advised by her attorney to bring the suit.

ATWOOD STRUCK OUT 12 MEN

Pitched Great Game for Steam Engineering--Protest Made.

The Steam Engineering and Morley Battalion teams furnished one of the best baseball games that has been played in the Sunset League, when the former defeated the Morley Battalion last evening by a score of 3 to 0. The game was remarkable for the pitching of Atwood, a new find of the Steam Engineering team, who struck out twelve men in the five innings and otherwise played a star

The game in detail: Steam Engineering opened at the bat with Thomas getting a base on balls and stealing second, but here he remained, as Hiesel and Fisher long fly out to Thompson.

The Morley opened with Plimpton going out via Clark to Hiesel. Pilgrim struck out and Connors singled. Lynskey reached first on Caswell's error and, with two men on bases Goodrich retired the side with a grounder to Hiesel.

There was no scoring in the second for the S. E. Caswell singled and stole second. Grant struck out, Atwood flied out to Lynskey and Clark, likewise to Plimpton.

For the Morley it was three strike outs. Timmons, Hart and Thompson, gloily.

The S. E. scored in the third. Johnson singled and Thomas drew a pass. Hiesel singled, advancing the others and, with the bases full, Fisher grounded to Hart and Johnson was forced at the home plate. Hennessey sent a grounder to Plimpton and Thomas was forced at home. There were still three men on bases, and Caswell singled, scoring Hiesel, but Fisher, in attempting to make home, was thrown out by Lynskey.

Morley again failed to score. Reardon struck out, Plimpton singled, but Pilgrim and Connors fanned.

Score S. E. 1, Morley 0.

Two more runs were made in the fourth. Grant was struck, and he stole second, and went to third on Atwood's single. The latter immediately stole second. With two on Clark drove out a two-base hit, and Grant also pulled out of some tight places, and Atwood scored. Johnson was

Mack's Hard Hitting Youngster, Whose Benching Caused Surprise

Philadelphia, July 21.—When Connie Mack in an effort to stop his team's slump and to check the series of disasters at Detroit pulled Jack McInnes out of the lineup something was shown that seldom, possibly never, had been done before. It was a move that few managers could be induced even to contemplate and that Mack himself a year ago would not have considered a possible play from the managerial end. To better the general effectiveness of his club he benched a man who had hit .361 in sixty-two games, only sixteen less than the team had played, and who is neither a bonehead nor a bad ball player. He had not secured a wonder to replace him, for he merely turned back to Harry Davis, who was never the hitter that McInnes has been this season and whose baseball days are numbered. The change incidentally lasted only two days, McInnes being placed back at the position. Taking 361 hitters out of the lineup to gain strength is something entirely new in the national pastime, especially when these hitters have been in nearly all of the games of their clubs. What it means to attain the dizzy heights reached by the banished youngster is best realized when it is said that in the ten complete seasons of the American league's history as a major organization the figure has been passed only seven times, and only three batters—Ed Delahanty, Larry Tjolle and Ty Cobb, each a greater hitter than any man Mack has—shared in this work. In five of the ten seasons no batter hit as well as McInnes has done. In but one of the years has any man playing the same position, first base, reached his mark.

out on a foul to Goodrich, and Thomas and Hiesel struck out.

Atwood got two more strike outs in the fourth. Lynskey singled, but was thrown out at second on Goodrich's grounder to Atwood, and Timmons and Hart struck out.

Score S. E. 3, Morley 0.

Nobody scored in the fifth. Fisher drew a pass and stole second. Hennessey also was given a free ticket to first. Caswell sent a grounder to Timmons and Fisher was thrown out at third. Grant was out to Connors and Atwood struck out.

The Morley had their best chance in the last inning. Thompson was struck, took first and stole second. Reardon struck out and Plimpton went to first on Clark's error. Thompson advanced to third. With men on third and second Pilgrim and Connors struck out.

Following the game there was a protest, made against Atwood pitching for the Steam Engineering, on the ground that Atwood was a sailor from the U. S. S. Wheeling, and not entitled to play. The S. E. simply stated that all the teams seemed to be strengthening their lineups and they pitched Atwood as he is from the yard. The directors voted to have the game played over, with another pitcher. NEW CASTLE

New Castle, July 21.

This week will see an exodus of the late stayers in town. Judging from the large number that arrived last week we realize that the dispersment has come and that society has scattered itself in all directions. Many are hieing themselves to our little summer Eden. Well, the island town is now adorable where nature still holds sway. The hotels are wide open and the furnished cottages are tempting and everything points to a hot and glorious season.

Preparation for the mid-summer festival, August 2 and 3, goes merrily on. It is safe to assume that it will excel all other years in point of attraction and attendance. A most fascinating program will be presented each evening, the success of which is already assured.

Mr. Welcome Maxim, who has been passing a two weeks' vacation with relatives, has returned to his home in Springfield.

Mrs. Fred Tibbetts and daughter Verner of Spectacle Island, Mass., are visiting Mr. George O. Ricker and family.

OBSEQUIES

Rufus A. Yeaton

The funeral of Rufus A. Yeaton was held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Meloon in New Castle, Rev. W. H. McDride officiating. The bearers were William Robinson, George B. Meloon, G. M. Amazeen and Andrew White. Interment was in Riverside cemetery, H. W. Nickerson in charge.

NAVY YARD

Gone on Retired List

Medical Director Samuel H. Dickson, U. S. N., formerly stationed at this yard, retired from duty yesterday, having reached the age limit.

Capt. Edwards in Town

Capt. John R. Edwards, former engineer officer at the yard, is passing a few weeks at Kittery Point.

Cruise on Mayflower

Part of President Taft's vacation probably will be spent cruising along the Maine coast in the Mayflower. It became known Thursday that the President and Mrs. Taft hope to spend at least a week on the presidential yacht and at summer resorts in Maine.

Navy Orders

Lieut. Comdr. A. Bronson, Jr., and Lieut. L. Cox, home and wait orders; Lieut. W. B. Decker, to duty as navigator of the Salem; Ensign H. Allen, to naval hospital, treatment; Ensign J. A. Monroe, to the Ohio; Ensign M. Collins, to the Salem; Ensign C. H. Streer, home.

Vessel Movements

Arrived, Sylph at New York yard, Cheyenne at Seattle, Hannibal and Ajax at Hampton Roads, Cyclops at Norfolk, Patience at Provincetown, Isla de Cuba, Reid, Flusser, Lamson, Preston, Smith, Paulding, Drayton, McCall, Rice, Perry and Perkins at Newport. Sailed, Polrot, from Cape Hatten for Gonaves; Yorktown, from Acapulco for Mare Island; Buffalo, from Kiska for Nome; Paducah, from Cape Gracias-a-Dios for Key West; Yankton, from Newport for cruising; Bainbridge, Date, Barry and Decatur, from Manila to Shanghai; Whipple, Hopkins, Hull, Truxton, Paul Jones, Perry, Preble, Stewart, Goldsboro and Rowan, from Bremerton for Seattle.

A Short Stay Here

The U. S. S. Washington will be docked on Tuesday next. The vessel will remain here about 48 hours.

Say There is a Rush

Rumors about the yard today have it that the department has issued hurry orders on the Montana.

Waiting to Slide Her Off

Barge 249 is still on the ways in the Franklin shiphouse ready to slip into the water and make room for the second barge No. 250, on which much preliminary work has been done.

Suffering From Blood Poison

P. J. Duffy, leadingman in the general store, is away from his duties suffering from blood poison as a result of a bruise to a finger of his left hand.

Still Guessing

Navy yard workmen and officials at the station are still wondering why the hold up in the department of that quarter of a million for the new foundry is allowed to continue.

BOYS AT BASEBALL

FACING EVIL

It is only by looking an evil fully in the face, neither magnifying nor hiding its real proportions, that we can obtain the requisite wisdom to avoid it, or the courage to vanquish it, or the fortitude to endure it.

THE LAW'S INFALLIBILITY

One would wish to believe that immunity from the law's penalties through a plea of mental irresponsibility is a privilege secured only in the imagination of muck-raking yellow editors. One would prefer to think, also, that the disrespectful cartoons and bon mots with "if that's the case not guilty" as a reason d'être are wholly unjustified.

Yet the most credulous and optimistic can but have their faith in the law's infallibility shattered by the frequent perusal of paragraphs like the following from a Boston newspaper: "Minnie Williams, called the champion kleptomaniac of the United States, was in the municipal court once more yesterday before Judge Forsythe. She was sentenced to six months in the house of correction, and, appealing, was held in $100 for the superior court, on a charge of a serious nature. She is already out on bail on a charge of larceny in the superior court. Minnie has been arrested 37 times on various charges, has been fined several times, has been sentenced to imprisonment several times, and yet has never in her life served a day in a jail, a house of correction, or any other kind of place of imprisonment."

The average person can sympathize with Minnie far more readily than with the crooked banker or trust president who goes unscathed by cunning yet transparent artifice. It might be interesting to know, however, just what machinations of justice have brought about the amazing condition of affairs as told in the paragraph quoted.

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

Bud Mars' retirement means that he will no longer be seen in the aeronautical firmament.

A Washington girl who has inherited a fortune of $19,000,000 is said to be remarkably beautiful. Was it ever otherwise?

Forty-nine automobiles were stolen in Chicago last month. June was a month of something beside roses in the packing city.

A dowry tax to stop our rich girls from marrying titled foreigners is asked by Representative Kahn, who will find that it can't.

The Boston metal dealer who was fleeced out of $7500 by crooks in Providence, evidently did not know upon which side his bread was buttered.

The United States takes nearly one-fourth of the nitrate production of Chile, not a hundredth part of it being brought in American vessels, by the way.

Bonham, Texas, has an ordinance which provides that in order to obtain a license to sell peanuts on the street, a man must have lost both legs. However, men who have never had them are standing on their own feet financially may consider themselves eligible.

The proprietor of a laundry in Mobile has been fined for violating the liquor law which suggests that he may have used alcohol for other than cleansing purposes.

Ethel Barrymore's "I don't know" when quizzed as to her reported divorce suit, is becoming as characteristic as Eva Tackelaway's stock phrase, "I don't care."

With Congress scheduled to adjourn on Aug. 7, it would be foolish for our lawmakers to abandon hope of winning the endurance test, says the Boston Herald. Quite right; the public is already entitled to the endurance pennant.

If Honey Fitz really sings while Boston burns the fact will give him a chance to go down in history as a modern Nero, says the Bliddeford Journal. Then behold his chance, for he really has sung while a good part of Boston burned to swat him one.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

"In Due Time."

It is interesting to note how seriously Norman Hapgood and the two or three other New Yorkers who have summer places in New Hampshire take themselves as to political affairs in this state. Because George Rublee was treated courteously, perhaps deferentially, last winter, by members of a committee who understood he was a personal representative of the governor, although such a thing had never before been heard of in the state's history, this little group of New Yorkers plainly regard themselves as a Board of Control in full charge of the Progressive forces of this state. The legislature having provided for a public service commission, such board issued public orders, such as Stevens of Landaff be made a member thereof, but that matter was eventually disposed of to the satisfaction of the state.

The board has now turned its attention to the matter of United States senator. The election does not come until a year from next winter, but they give warning that "the next severe test in strength between the Old Guard and the Progressives" will come then. They allow Burnham and Quincy to divide the Old Guard support, giving the former the most of it. They allow Pillsbury to "seek the office on his own account," but refuse to make further disclosures of their purpose, other than that they will announce a choice for the Progressives "in due time." It may be Hapgood and it may be Rublee, all a secret now, but he will be properly "tagged" when they see fit to issue the manifesto. They have no consideration for the voters except manifestos, as attested by the secrecy as to the Rublee letter of last winter, which never would have come to the public but for the insistence of President Mellen, who wrote it.

And they will find that the voters have no more consideration for them. The latter have thrown over completely the dictation of their political affairs from Boston, and they have no more liking for a Board of Control in New York. The Boston dictators were never so arrogant in their manifestos as these fellows; they never published broadcast that they would announce a candidate for an important office "in due time," whatever they may have done as a matter of fact. There has been a change. New Hampshire is small; but she has awakened to the fact that she is too big to be owned, politically or otherwise by office tenants in Boston, much less in New York. Mr. Hapgood and the Board of Control whose mouthpiece he thinks he is, may have some influence in the abandonment of the Portsmouth navy yard which they publicly advocate, but which every New Hampshire man opposes, but as to the senator for whose election New Hampshire people have the voice, there is no more than curiosity as to whom they shall announce as the candidate for the Progressives "in due time." It will be sufficient that he wears their tag.—Manchester Union.

Typical

"I've had lots of experience in prohibition towns," remarked the drummer who had weathered a "dry" Sunday, "but this is nothing to what happened to me in Kansas once. One of my customers invited me to his house for supper. When I arrived I was introduced to his wife and son. Before we went to the dining room my host took me aside and said:

"Perhaps you'd like a little something—but don't mention this to my wife."

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Gleanings From Files of Portsmouth Chronicle

The inward freight depot of the B. and M. R. R. in Boston was burnt on Saturday morning. The whole loss including the building and freight is estimated at but $5000 which is covered by insurance. The books and papers in the depot office were all saved and uninjured. The fire originated in some cotton waste, it is supposed from spontaneous combustion.

A steamer with a brig in tow for Boston fired a gun for a pilot of No Man's Land and the Josiah Sturges put a pilot on board. The captain of a light-boat saw the vessels together and supposed the steamer to be a privateer and that she had captured the brig and the pilot boat. Hence the story of "another privateer."

At the Charlestown Navy Yard it having been ascertained that a few men not citizens of the United States, about 16.

"He winked at me and I followed him to the woodshed, thinking he had a pet rabbit he wanted to show me. But no—he dug a flask from the woodpile, saying, 'You had a pretty cold ride and this might help some. But don't tell pa.'"

"Then we had supper. Everything was mighty good, and the evening passed very pleasantly. But I wanted to spring a joke, so I pretended to have a dreadful cough. A minute after I was shown to my room there was a timid knock on my door and a soprano voice without said:

"I noticed you were coughing this evening. There is a bottle of rock and rye in the bathroom, marked poison. Get it and use it if you cough. But please say nothing to the rest of the family about it. Good night."

"I didn't say nothing to nobody. But I had a good time in that house."—Boston Traveler.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

Boston, July 21.—Literary Boston observed the hundredth anniversary of Thackeray's birth with fitting ceremonies. Nowhere in America is the humorist's memory more highly honored than in this city, which occurred the immortal experiences with the larger oyster and the small hack. Thackeray remarked that the Hub was to him easily the most likeable city of the new world. The Boston Public Library has arranged an exhibition of Thackeray rarities, mostly owned by Francis Bullard, which includes a number of rare and original editions of Thackeray's works, several portraits, one being the Lawrence portrait, and reproductions of two of the writer's drawings of himself. These interesting reminiscences will be on view in the Fine Arts Department for a month and are worth dropping in to see when you are in town.

A nearly completed building adjacent to the white marble Harvard medical school which has aroused much speculation among passersby in recent months is rapidly approaching the time when its healing facilities as the Rotch Memorial Infants' Hospital will become available. The construction is of the same material as the medical group adding one more to the imposing collection of buildings which are becoming more and more widely known as the "great white city of healing." The field for its activities is a wide one, for Boston despite race suicide still has some kids, but the institution seems to be amply provided with every facility needed for properly carrying on its work.

The craze for sea bathing; these summer days has caused complications at the beaches such as never before existed. The perspiring interland, however, need not fear being deprived of the cherished annual bath. At Revere Beach a big tent has been erected in addition to the State bathhouse, in the shelter of which men and boys bringing their own suits may be accommodated. The tent will take 1500 additional bathers, so the authorities hope that the congested lines waiting for lockers at the bathhouse will be no longer in evidence. Many of those whom inadequate facilities kept out of the water found themselves all in, and did not hesitate to tell the news. Hence the scurry for additional facilities.

Ideas from England, a few of them have been brought back by the two Boston suffragists, Florence Luscomb and Margaret Foley, who went abroad last April to study militant methods, most of which however, will not be useful in this country. The young ladies not only saw a lot of certain work in Great Britain and had a glimpse at the industrial conditions in which hundreds of thousands of English women work, but they also attended the International Woman Suffrage Congress in Stockholm and made a tour of Sweden, Norway, Holland, Belgium and France. Their experiences on the steamer returning home were typical of the propaganda that is not only bringing equal suffrage nearer in all American states, but that is strengthening men's interest in government at problems. On board was an American gentleman, a professor of psychology in a western university, who lurked in the background of several animated discussions—for the news that there were suffragettes in the cabin had caused the formation of impromptu debating societies. After several days of listening to the arguments, pro and con, the psychologist remarked, in a precise scholarly tone of voice, to one of the young ladies: "Miss Foley, I am going to vote at the next election, for the third time in my life, I am sorry to say, although I am over forty years of age. Politics has always seemed to me a dirty game, one quite outside the range of my taste and interests. But as I have heard what you suffragists have to say about the need of laws that will better protect the home and the children I have felt ashamed of having never even tried to make my influence felt in political life. Henceforth I shall vote at every election while I live. You have impressed that duty on me, as no one has ever done before. As to woman suffrage, I greatly admire women and their characteristics, but I am still a little afraid that contact with the rough political world may wear off the bloom. Isn't it enough to exert an influence?"

"We understand that the United States ships Marion and Dule, which have just sailed from the navy yard were each furnished by Rev. Mr. Medbury, our city missionary, with fifty Bibles and fifty Testaments from the American Bible Society, New York.

At an adjourned meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Friday evening a new dog law was passed in compliance with the petition presented some days since. The bill was passed by one majority, one member of the Board being absent. It must now go before the Common Council for their concurrence, of course, and until this (very uncertain) result is attained the present law remains in force.

The council adjourned for one week, when it is intended making an investigation before taking any action.

RAILROAD NOTES

Four hundred feet of glider rail in the spur track on Deer street is being taken up by the Electric street railway section crew and will be put in on Market Square. The rail on Market Square will replace that on Deer street.

The gasoline engine which furnishes motor power for the round house turntable is out of commission and the engines are turned by hand until repairs can be made.

Bridge No. 232 known as the Brave Boat Harbor structures will be rebuilt beginning on Sunday next.

WHITE ANGEL TOOK THE MONEY

Playout the Most Successful Ending of Big Muster

The hand tub, White Angel of Salem, won the first money in the playout on Thursday afternoon, with a stream that measured 214 feet 7 1/4 inches, at the last minute taking the honor from the Triumph of Berwick, which had held the honor with a stream of 210 feet 11 1/4 inches, for over an hour.

The Gov. Bradstreet of North Andover took third money with 203 feet 4 1/4 inches, the Hancock of Brockton, the championship tub, was fourth, the Vixen of Somersworth, fifth and the last prize went to the Liberty of Lowell.

The playout was under as favorable conditions as are generally met with, and it was run without a hitch or a protest on the part of the contesting companies, and the only accident was to the home tub, the Eureka, the first on the stand.

The playout was scheduled for 1.30 but at that time the big tank was not full and a delay of half an hour was made in the schedule. The tank was filled by a line of hose extending from the Madison street reservoir. No. 4 engine was stationed at the reservoir and pumped the water through 3000 feet of hose, and once the tank was filled the tubs never lowered it to any extent.

The Eureka, the pet of the Franklin Peirce, was the first tub on the platform and they were given five minutes to limber up and fill the line, before their actual time went on. The rule of the New England League was followed, allowing each tub fifteen minutes to get on and off the platform, and play as many times as they desired. As a rule every tub was off the boards with several minutes to spare.

When the Eureka started her first stream there was a strong breeze blowing across the boards and the conditions were really the worst of the afternoon, the wind later shifting so that it favored the later tubs. On the first try the Eureka scored 153 feet 1 1/4 inches, and the next trial fell short of the board. On the third trial the stream went to pieces and it was seen that something was the matter with the tub. At the playing stand it was evident, as the gasket on the water way blew out under a pressure of 190 pounds, putting the tub out of commission. The crew were greatly disappointed, but all agreed that they were glad that it was the home tub and not a visiting tub.

The second tub on was the Uncle Sam of Manchester, and they reached only 143 feet with a cross wind. The wind at this time began to soften and swung more favorable, and the Neptune of Newburyport got a distance of 181 feet 11 1/4 inches. The Liberty No. 1 of Lowell played under even more favorable conditions, and as this was their tub's first muster great interest was taken. She reached 195 feet 11 7/8 inches, and one spurt fell over ten feet beyond, but the stream was not on the board and did not count. This was high mark until the Triumph of Berwick got under way, and 210 feet 11 1/4 inches looked like easy money, and it did hold good until the fourteenth tub played. The Berwick crew also manned the brakes of the Vixen, and when they got through they had first and second place, but the Vixen held it only for a short time, when the Hancock, the championship tub, took the board. The best they could do, however, was just 2 1/4 inches better than the Vixen.

The Gov. Bradstreet got into the money with a throw of 203 feet 4 1/4 inches, and next to last came the White Angel of Salem and, with a favorable shift of wind she sent a stream down the boards that brought the crowd to their feet. Measured, it was 216 feet 7 inches, but with the drawback it brought it down to 214 feet 7 1/4 inches. The Franklin Peirce was the only tub left and when they were getting on the stand the wind was blowing directly down the board, but as soon as they were in readiness the wind had shifted and was then blowing across the boards. On the second throw the old tub sent a handsome stream down the boards and it measured 183 feet 6 1/4 inches. With still considerable time left the crowd at the paper were surprised to see the Franklin Peirce pull off the boards, and it developed that somebody had run up and notified the crew that they had second money. They were so elated that they pulled off without another trial.

The following was the official measurement:

Name of Tub	Distance
1. White Angel, Salem	214 ft. 7 1/4 in.
2. Triumph, Berwick	210 ft. 11 1/4 in.
3. Gov. Bradstreet, No. Andover	203 ft. 4 1/4 in.
4. Hancock, Brockton	202 ft. 4 3/4 in.
5. Vixen, Berwick	202 ft. 2 1/4 in.
6. Liberty No. 1, Lowell	195 ft. 11 7/8 in.
7. Neptune, Newburyport	191 ft. 11 3/4 in.
8. Protection, Amesbury	186 ft. 6 1/2 in.
9. Thomas W. Lane, Manchester	183 ft. 8 in.
10. Franklin Peirce, Portsmouth	183 ft. 6 1/2 in.
11. Tiger, Newburyport	179 ft. 3 1/4 in.
12. Eureka, Portsmouth	152 ft. 9 3/4 in.
13. Uncle Sam, Manchester	143 ft. 1 in.

The prize money was first, $200; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $75; fifth, $50, and sixth, $25.

The judges were, on the machines: John H. Ray, Portland, president of the New England League, and John H. Walker, Lowell, at the pipe; ex-Chief Garbsey, of Sanford and Capt. Patrick Manning, Amesbury, on the boards; Secretary William H. Hathaway, Boston. Chief John D. Randall, time-keeper, J. Warren Tilton, Exeter.

At the conclusion of the playout, the Salem company with a band, marched through the city and left for home happy. The judges adjourned to the Kearsarge hotel and went over the figures and awarded the checks. The majority of the veterans left on the early evening trains for home.

White, treasurer; and Horace W. Gray, Joseph W. Altemann, William J. Gallagher, Hiram C. Merrill, Charles W. Hanscom, Charles H. Foote and Eben H. Blaisdell.

CHINAMEN'S CASE IS PERPLEXING TO JUDGE SIMES

Judge Thomas H. Simes of the municipal court is perplexed by the case of the state against eight Chinamen who are charged with gambling. The case has already occupied two afternoon sessions of court, and Judge Simes has deferred passing judgment until Monday, when he expects to reach a conclusion.

City Marshal Thomas Entwistle, accompanied by Patrolmen J. Frank Shannon and Frank H. West, raided the Chinese restaurant of Harry Chin on Fleet street Saturday night. When they entered the restaurant Chin quickly stepped to an electric button on one of the walls and turned off the lights in the cellar below according to the evidence. Marshal Entwistle commanded him to turn on the lights. Chin complied with the order and the officers opened a trap door in the floor.

As they proceeded into the cellar the lights were again flicked out for a time, they testified, but not long enough to prevent them seeing the Chinamen scrambling away from the table and at the same time seeking to remove something that lay upon the table. A pack of cards was found upon the floor. When the Chinamen were searched only money was in their clothing.

Attorney John L. Mitchell, who defends the Chinamen argued that the act of gambling is not asserted. City Solicitor Samuel W. Emery, Jr., argued the actions of Chin, the cellar room protected by a trap door, the scrambling of the Chinamen for something that lay upon the table, and the finding of money only in their pockets prove the circumstance of gambling.

Mr. Mitchell said in court that the Chinamen may have been reaching for their hats or clothing. Judge Simes says that the point he must debate with himself is whether the presence of money in the Chin's clothing is evidence, as money is the only object they could have snatched from the table and secreted.

GRANITE STATE MAN HONORED AT CONVENTION

From the viewpoint of Exalted Ruler Augustine Dondero of Portsmouth Lodge and other New Hampshire Elks who have returned from Atlantic City, the brightest feature of the convention was the election of Frank Leveroni of Keene to the office of inner guard. This election marks the first time that a citizen of New Hampshire has occupied a chair in the grand lodge of the big order.

Mr. Dondero said today that John Patrick Sullivan of New Orleans, who was elected exalted ruler to succeed Garry Hermann, is six feet two inches tall and is constructed proportionately. His big frame radiates good nature. The speech that nominated Arthur C. Moreland, the blind editor of the Elk's Antler, for exalted ruler was the finest oratorical effort of the season, Mr. Dondero said.

From a business standpoint the decision to build a $250,000 home at Bedford, Va., to supplant the home for infirm Elks already in existence was the most important action. The fund will be raised by a per capita tax to be collected in two years. If a sufficient fund is collected a home for consumptive Elks will also be erected.

Mr. Dondero said that someone introduced a resolution requiring the grand lodge to purchase tracts of land on which to raise hay with which to feed the elk in winter, but the grand lodge decided that its province is not to provide fodder for the animal. The Elks have pledged themselves to abstain from purchasing elk's teeth for charms or other decorations.

LYNN HISTORICAL SOCIETY VIEWS OLD PORTSMOUTH

Portsmouth was scrutinized Wednesday beneath the quizzical eyes and the monacles of thirty-five members of the Lynn Historical Society of Lynn. Its historical possessions were opened wide for their commendation.

The members arrived in this city at 10.26 a. m. in a special car attached to a regular train. They were greeted at the station by Miss Helen Pearson, the guide, who assumed the role of historian. Daniel Webster's house near the corner of Vaughan and Deer streets, Portsmouth Athenaeum, with its historical library of 25,000 volumes, and the Moffat house, the first three-story building in the United States, were the objects of their inspection. At the Athenaeum the tourists were greeted by its president, Rev. Alfred Gooding, pastor of the First Unitarian Church.

In riding to Kittery the members saw the site at which the America was built for John Paul Jones. At the navy yard they were shown the room in which the treaty of Portsmouth was signed. St. John's Church, the communion set presented by Queen Caroline, the ancient scone brought from Setigai, the vinegar Bible and the big bell brought from Louisburg by Sir William Pepperell were inspected when the return to this city was made. The Warner house and the lightning rod placed upon it by Benjamin Franklin were next shown by Miss Pearson.

Luncheon was served in the Unitarian chapel on Court street. After worshipping at the shrine of Thomas Bailey Aldrich the Lynn sightseers saw the Halifax tavern, the John Langdon and John Wentworth mansions and the old Hale mansion, now occupied by the Portsmouth Athletic Club. They returned to Lynn in a special car at 4.57 o'clock in the afternoon. The party was in charge of C. J. H. Woodbury, Miss Sallie H. Hacker and William S. Burrell.

Regular meeting this evening of St. Aspinquid Tribe of Red Men. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Peterson of Whitman, Mass., are guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. Lou Robbins of Central street.

This evening the game in the Sunset League will be the Nationals and Centrals.

Mr. J. B. Lewis and Mrs. Katherine L. Stevenson are to occupy the pulpit of the Second Christian Church on Sunday next both at the 10.30 and 7 o'clock services. All welcome. They are to speak on the temperance question and are reported to be able speakers. There will be solos by Miss Charlotte Bickford and Mr. Albert Sprague.

The Women's muster in Portsmouth yesterday attracted quite a crowd from this side of the river.

Tomorrow gives promise of being a day to be long remembered by all residents of the town. It is the occasion of the big temperance rally under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. It will begin with a big parade of floats and automobiles, which will start from Kittery Junction at 2 p. m., after meeting the autos from out of town, and state officers, and will proceed through the principal street as far as Hutchins Corner at Kittery Point, then returning to the Public Library grounds, where there will be addresses by various temperance workers. It is expected that many houses will be decorated.

Details of the damage inflicted by Thursday evening's electrical storm will be found in the general story of the disturbance.

Kittery Point

Capt. John H. Prout's family here expect him to arrive today in the steam yacht Carmina of which he is skipper. The Carmina is owned by Francis S. Smithers of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Emery of Kittery, the latter formerly of Kittery Point, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter.

Tug M. Mitchell Davis was grounded on the flats at Frisbee's wharf over night for repairs to her propeller.

The K. F. G. Fancywork Club will meet next Thursday with Miss Ethel C. Frisbee.

Mrs. Edward Russell Hale of Haverhill visited her parents, Hon. and Mrs. Horace Mitchell, this week.

Frank C. Frisbee, who was severely burned by gasoline last week, was able to resume his duties in Frisbee Brothers' store Thursday.

Herbert Tobey called on friends in Kittery Thursday evening.

Mrs. Frank E. Geisell, who had her ankle broken and back hurt in the Atlantic Shore Railway collision at Emery's siding July 1, was able to be about on crutches Thursday for the first time, which is good news to her many friends.

Mrs. Ernest C. Tobey and children Vernon and Catherine have returned from a visit with relatives in Wood's Hill, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Adams of Dover visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Judson G. Irish on Thursday.

Hon. Horace Mitchell was in Boston Thursday on business.

A boat from the revenue cutter Gresham inspected several motor craft in the harbor Thursday afternoon but so far as known found no infractions of the laws on the equipment of such vessels.

KIP PT
Miss Ethel C. Frisbee has returned to her home here after spending a week with friends in Skowhegan and a week in West Poland.

Col. George H. Higbee of Burlington, Iowa, has arrived here to open his summer cottage on Gerrish Island for the season.

The dredge at work in Pepperell's Cove has encountered a ledge off Frisbee's wharf, covered with from two to six feet of mud and of the length of two scows. It may be a serious obstacle to carrying on the work as planned.

IN THE REALM OF FASHION

White Lingerie Gown.

The costume illustrated is of soft white lawn, with a hand embroidered tulle which opens at either side to give the popular plastron effect, while the epaulets, which extend almost to the elbow, are cut in one with the rest of the tulle. This must be carefully fitted before the edges are embroidered so that the border and the handsome embroidered motifs are exactly in the right position when the gown is on. A dainty hat of white lace sketched with this is very simply trimmed with a knife plaited chain of pale mauve glace ribbon. The costume is charming for a young girl.

Coats and Blouses.

Some coats and blouses show a seam running from under the arm to the neck at the top of the shoulder, front and back, the shoulders and sleeve being cut in one and often being made of different material from the rest of the garment.

Some Silk Hats.

Shantung hats are popular with the autists and others, and the more elaborate models are trimmed with various colored bands or oriental banding.

THE VACATION GARB FOR THE SUMMER GIRL

Pretty Yet Sensible Garments Should Be Selected.

The girl who is going away on a vacation has a problem before her in the choice of clothes. Of course everything is more or less settled by the climate she goes into; but, after all, one wears summer clothes in summer with the addition of a few warm garments if the weather is cool.

For two or three weeks' stay she would only need four white skirts, which she could make of linen duck at home by a good six gore pattern, and one dark brown or blue for long walks or for boating. Her blouses should be all white or with just a speck of color, and she will find chin silk better for this than muslin and embroidery. They do not require such dainty ribbon run underwear as a transparent waist, and they are not as expensive to launder.

The best pattern has a few flat plaits down front and back, sleeves put in at the arm hole and plaited to the wrist, a soft turnover cuff, together with link buttons.

There should be a turnover collar buttoned at back and front of the neck band, and under this goes a colored cravat to match the stocking. In such a costume a woman is always cool and comfortable and has the knowledge that she is correctly dressed.

The colored Norfolk jacket not only supplies the warmth of the sweater, but is a better touch, and it does not soil.

Concerning Fashion.

Marquise blouses are high in favor and may be had in all styles and colorings.

Rings now comply with the "unity in color" idea; if you wear sapphires, wear sapphires only; if emeralds, emeralds only.

Manufacturers are turning out patent leather pumps daintily lined with scarlet morocco, with heels about three-quarters of an inch in height.

Among the useful fabrics that find first place in women's favor are the henriettes and soft cashmires that lend themselves to either a simple or an ornate style.

The colored blouse that matches the materials of which the tailored suit is made is an important factor in the outfit of every well dressed woman.

A Little father

Boy of Twelve finds Himself at the Head of a family

By Abner C. Watkins

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There are men who, though they have not had refining influence in their boyhood, are nevertheless natural gentlemen. Such a one is my friend Grigsby, a successful business man, prominent in his circle and possessing a very tender heart. I dined with him and his wife recently. While we were at dinner his son, a stalwart youngster of twelve or thirteen, came in late from participating in a baseball match. I noticed the look of pride and affection with which his father regarded him.

"Your boy is a manly little fellow," I remarked.

"Well, yes, but he hasn't the advantages to make him so that I had at his age."

"How is that?"

"No advantages at all, or, rather, I had a responsibility thrown on me at twelve that brought out all there was in me. When I was my boy's age I was a father."

"A father?"

"Yes. I'll tell you about it later."

After dinner Grigsby and I went out on to the porch to smoke, and he told me the following story:

"My father died when I was seven years old, and from that time I began to be a man. I wasn't much of a man at first, but I grew in manliness faster than in body or in years. My mother died when I was twelve, and I was turned out to make a living as best I could. I had saved a few dollars, which I invested in the newspaper business, and managed in this way to put food into my stomach. I used to sleep anywhere at that time—I don't now remember, or, rather, I don't wish to remember, where. I recollect one place, a hayloft over a stable, to which I gained access by making friends with the coachman. It is impressed on my memory because I took my daughter there."

"Your daughter? What do you mean?"

"I was going home one night—I mean to the loft—feeling very blue. I was thinking of my mother, who had died a few months before, and wishing I might find her in my sleeping place, even if it was a stable. Suddenly I heard the cry of a young babe, which sounds more like a young rooster's first crow than anything else. Turning, in an angle formed by a stoop and a basement wall of a house I saw a bundle wrapped in a bathing towel.

"I unwrapped it at one end and uncovered the face of a girl baby. I was wondering what in the world to do with her when she gave me something like a smile. This brought a sudden desire to hold on to her. Fearful some one would rob me of my find, I covered up the face, and, rolling the whole thing in some unsold newspapers, I tucked it under my arm and went on to my home over the stable."

"Fortunately it was summer, and the weather was hot. I say fortunately, for a baby can stand no end of heat, but doesn't thrive on cold. I didn't know it at the time, but I did know that the child must have something to eat."

"The mother who had abandoned her had rolled up in the bundle a bottle filled with milk. I suppose she thought that a first feed would give her child a better chance to live. I knew enough to put the nipple into the baby's mouth, and it began to pull right away."

"This was playing family man with a vengeance. I don't know that I and my family could have been more comfortable in a brownstone house. I certainly wouldn't have been as happy. I had wanted a dog for company, and I thought the baby beat the dog all hollow."

"They made a sheet of the bathing towel and put the baby to bed on a hay mattress. Then I cuddled down beside her and went to sleep, thinking that I must tell mother all about my adventure in the morning. For years after mother's death I thought at times I must tell her things.

"I didn't worry about the family breakfast till the sun came in through a crack and woke me up. I heard a cooing beside me and remembered my find. Raising myself on my elbow, there was the baby trying to get her big toe in her mouth. She had kicked her legs loose and wasn't very much covered. I bent over her, and she smiled at me."

"But it wasn't long before she began that rooster crowing, and about the same time I heard my friend the coachman below doing his morning stable chores. I tried to quiet the child, but, though I didn't know it, nothing would do it but some breakfast. There was the bottle, but nothing in it. The baby squaled louder and louder, and I, fearing the coachman would get on to my harboring a family besides myself in the loft and evict us, tried to stop the crying by taking the baby up and walking it as I had seen fathers do before. While I was thus engaged the trap at the top of the stairs leading from below opened, and there were the head and shoulders of Patsy, the coachman. He was looking straight at me with wonder on his face, which changed to an explosion of laughter."

"Be dad!" he exclaimed. "I've done it myself many a night when the day was breakin'. Where in the world did ye get the child anyway?"

"I explained matters to Patsy and begged him not to turn me out. He made no promise, but, taking my bottle, went away and presently returned with it full of warm milk. This quieted the baby, and Patsy went downstairs."

"Half an hour passed, and I was thinking, as many a father has done whose domestic affairs are keeping him from business, that some other newsboy would get my regular customers away from me, when I heard steps and voices below, and in another moment Patsy lifted the trap. But instead of coming toward me he held it open for some one else. That some one was a benevolent looking gentleman."

"I was playing with the baby's pink toes at the time and, seeing the corners, turned to look at them. The expression on the gentleman's face was a composition of wonder, amusement, pity and general sympathy. Coming up to our family, he bent over the baby and put his forefinger into its little hand for it to clasp. Then, turning to me, he asked me to tell him all about myself and my find."

"When I had finished he told me that he would send my baby where it would receive proper attention and when he saw a tear in my eye added that if I kept her in the loft she would die. He further promised that I should always be informed where she was, and I might visit her from time to time. He told me to carry her into the house—he being the owner of the premises—and when we arrived he gave me the first real breakfast I had had in years. When I had finished he developed a plan by which I might spend a part of my time at school and have something better than a hayloft for a home."

"This was only the beginning of his interest in me and my daughter. As time wore on he did more and more for me. When I was eighteen years old he took me into his counting room. I had a natural adaptation for work—in fact, was never happy except when I was doing something. The consequence was that when I had finished my own work for the day, I took hold of that of the lazy fellows in the office, with the result that after awhile they were sent away and I given their work and pay besides my own. In this way I jumped up pretty fast and in two years was getting a good salary."

"I gradually lost interest in the daughter I had had with me for so short a time, but I continued occasionally to ask my benefactor, Mr. Merryman, about her. He always assured me that she was being taken care of and some day I might meet her again. Through his kindness to me I inferred that he was doing a good deal for her."

"When I was twenty-five years old Mr. Merryman took me into his business as a junior partner, and when I was thirty he retired and left me its manager. Then one day he told me he wished to see me at his house on a certain evening. I went, supposing he wished to talk to me about the business. When I arrived he introduced me to a young girl about eighteen years old, saying to me, 'This is your daughter,' and to her, 'This is your father, that I have often told you about.'"

"I suppose the interested, curious expression I saw in her eyes was duplicated in mine. I took her extended hand and felt it clasp mine with emotion. She had long known the story of our first meeting and how we had set up housekeeping in a hayloft."

Grigsby stopped at this point in his story to relight his cigar, which had gone out.

"Well," I asked, "did the father and daughter relationship continue?"

"First let me tell you about another matter. The clothing of the foundling had been carefully examined by those to whom I turned her over. They indicated that she had been born of the middle class. But there was not a word, not even a letter, to indicate who her parents were, and the secret has never come out to this day."

"And the father and daughter business?" I persisted.

"Oh, Mrs. Grigsby can tell that better than I. The parent and child became husband and wife. But that's a story in itself, and I'm no man to go into tales of love. Ask her."

ATTACKS CHURCH IN NEW BILL

Concord, N. H., July 20.—"Perilous," "hostile to society" and "forbidden and made void by public policy and the laws of the land," are some of the terms applied to the practices of the leaders of the Christian Science church in a lengthy set of amendments filed with the clerk of the Merrimack county superior court today by counsel for George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., to Glover's bill seeking to have the residuary clause of the will of his mother, Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, declared void.

This residuary clause bequeathed the residue of the estate, estimated at about $2,000,000, to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, and Glover seeks to obtain this residue for himself and Dr. E. J. Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt., Mrs. Eddy's adopted son. The bill is directed against Henry M. Baker of Bow, executor of the Eddy estate, and officers of the Christian Science church.

The amendments declare that "the defendants are carrying forward, and have been for many years, certain practices based upon certain notions which in no sense whatever, in fact or in law, are a charity or a benevolence, so that money given therefor can be considered a charitable trust; but on the contrary those practices, although described in the residuary bequest of Mrs. Eddy's will as 'the religion of Christian Science as taught by me,' are pernicious and hostile to organized society and constitute a business which is forbidden and made void by public policy and the laws of the land."

The Christian Science religion and its practices and the administration of its church affairs are discussed at length in the amendments which conclude:

"The plaintiff now therefore avers that the residuary bequest of substantially all Mrs. Eddy's property to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., was procured by the five directors of said church by concealment from her of the unlawfulness of the bequest and by undue influence over a feeble and deluded testatrix, and that said bequest is void."

BANISHED HOBO QUIT TOWN IN MOTOR CAR

Ragged and unkempt, a dirty old linen duster about his shoulders and the stump of a cigar in his mouth, an old man was arraigned before Recorder Hauenstein, in Union Hill, N. J., yesterday charged with vagrancy.

"He's Augustine J. Major," a policeman told the recorder. "He hangs out in a Bowery lodging house and is a professional panhandler. He's been coming over here for years begging on the streets."

"Is that true?" asked the recorder.

"Guess it is," replied the policeman. "I'm seventy-three years old and have been panhandling here longer than most of you have been alive."

"Well, I'll give you just one hour to leave town," said the court. "If you don't go I'll send you to prison."

"That being the case," answered Major with a laugh, "I guess I'll quit Jersey as befitting a man of my means. Will some one please 'phone for the best touring car in this section of the state? I want that car."

Some one, to carry out what was believed to be a joke, telephoned for the car. When it arrived Major stalked forth and told the chauffeur to open the door.

"Who is going to pay for all this?" asked the chauffeur.

"I am," spoke up Major, as he pulled from a pocket of his tailored trousers a roll of bills that made policemen and court attendants gasp. The wrapper about the roll was a $100 bill. Major climbed into the automobile, doffed his cap to the policeman and said to the chauffeur:

"New drive to the West Shore ferry. Then you can take me to my mansion on the Bowery. If this isn't enough to pay you for your trouble I'll draw you a check on my bankers."

NEW FIREARMS LAW IN MASSACHUSETTS

Since July 14 it has been a dangerous thing in Massachusetts for anybody to have for sale, or to expose in a window or public place, or to have any sign announcing for sale, rent or lease of a revolver or pistol or any kind of firearm over 12 inches long, without first securing a license from the mayor or from the mayor and council, as it would mean fines of from $50 to $100, or imprisonment for a year or both.

"This is the sense of the new law which passed this year and which went into effect on the above date and is an added precaution against the indiscriminate use of firearms and the carrying of them on the person concealed."

After that date any person who has a good reason to go armed must first secure a license to carry the firearm and he must carry that permit with him all the time as he is liable to a heavy fine or imprisonment or both if any such weapon is found on his person at any time, day or night.

The law is particularly severe regarding the sale of weapons and makes it almost impossible for small dealers to carry a stock to any profit, the object being to discourage as far as possible any general carrying of such weapons that have caused so much trouble, especially among the lately arrived foreigners.

The licensing board may grant licenses to persons to sell, lease or rent such firearms and every licensee shall bear the name of the street, lane, alley or other place, the street number of the store, a description of the building where the person does business who applies for the license.

Before the delivery of the firearm to the person buying or renting the same the licensee must make entry in a book of a description of the firearm, whether single or double, loaded, magazine, revolver, pin, rim or center fire; whether sold, rented or leased, the date, hour of delivery, the full name of the person hiring, leasing or renting, or even borrowing, the sex of the person, residence and occupation.

This book must be open at all times to the inspection of the police or the licensing board and a copy of the license to do this business, properly received, must be posted in a conspicuous place in the store.

Further than this, no firearms shall be displayed in any show window or in any place where they can be readily seen from outside the premises, all licenses to expire on April 30 of each year.

Any person leasing, borrowing or hiring a firearm under a fictitious name or address shall be fined from $25 to $100, or imprisoned for not more than a year, or both.

NEW ENGLAND FRUIT SHOW

Boston, July 21.—It has been announced that negotiations have been completed whereby the New England Fruit Show will be conducted in direct connection with the great New England Industrial and Educational Exposition to be held in Mechanics Hall, Boston, during the month of October.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce which is in charge of the Industrial Exposition, will assume the responsibility for the fruit show, and Chester I. Campbell will manage both. At the same time, the officers of the fruit show will continue in direct charge of that feature. There are J. Lewis Elishworth, President Wilfrid Wheeler, Secretary, and A. Warren Patch, Treasurer. These gentlemen will issue the premium list, arrange for the exhibits and award of prizes, and attend to the other details, as they did with the highly successful fruit show conducted by them two years ago. The Trade Extension and Agriculture Committees of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, however, through Manager Campbell will be in close touch and make cooperative arrangements whereby the fruit show and the Industrial Exposition may be conducted in cooperation with the other. The big exposition is to be in Mechanics Building during the entire month of October. The fruit show will be in Horticultural hall October 23-25. During that week one admission will admit to both shows.

Those interested in the promotion of agriculture in New England are greatly pleased that this coalition is to be made. They recognize the valuable aid which the Chamber of Commerce gave to the first New England Fruit Show a year ago last October. It is generally conceded that the present reawakening of interest in agriculture in this section may definitely be traced back to that show and the work done by the Chamber of Commerce at the time.

The Chamber arranged a great dinner in Ford hall, to which it invited as its guests all the farmers, orchardists and others who were exhibiting at the show. It also invited men all over New England who were known to be interested in agriculture, and then turned out itself with several hundred of the active business men of Boston.

Farmers, fruit growers and business men sat down together and ate a dinner of New England products. After dinner a number of well known experts on agriculture made stirring speeches about the opportunity for making money out of New England soil.

That dinner, and the pamphlet entitled "The Future of the New England Farm" which the Chamber published simultaneously attracted the entire United States. Since then the tide has steadily turned toward New England; farms are being bought up, old orchards renovated, new trees set out. The coming Fruit Show, years after the awakening, will be a taking account of stock. It is expected to show a remarkable advance in the quantity and quality of fruit grown in New England.

The linking up of this exhibition with the Industrial, demonstrates the broad scope of the exposition. The exposition itself, in fact, will include a notable agricultural display showing modern methods of keeping stock, dairying, equipping the farm, etc.

The Impossible.
man may grow forests both deep and wide,
Luxurious birches and pines;
He can grow oak trees with the greatest of ease
And acres of shrubs and vines;
He can grow choice fruits on the topmost boughs,
On which the nations are fed,
But he can't grow a thatch on the little bald patch
On the top of his well-timed head.
—Mount Tom Herald.

So, too, can a man save himself from a fall
By ashing the walk to the street,
He can save himself shivers with piling on kivers
And tucking them in at the feet;
He can save himself worry, embarrassment, hurry,
And save the smashed dish with cement,
But until some one busts about forty-five trusts
He can't save a cent.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Road to Fortune.
The musician hung his arms aloft.
"At last," he cried, "I have fame with me in my grasp."
"How so?" asked his wife, who had heard the same thing before.
"You know Mendelssohn's 'Wedding March' and the marvelous reputation it brought him?" said the musician.
"Yes. What of it?"
"Well, I am going to write a divorce march."—Elude.

After the Facts.
As a small boy was standing on one of the best library chairs and clawing with his grubby hands some of the choicest bindings in the bookcase his progenitor entered suddenly and cried rather sharply, "What are you doing at that bookcase, Wilfred?"
"Trying to find the history of the United States, father."

"What for?"
"Why, Joe Billings at our school says Mike Donlin played with the Giants year before last and I say he didn't."—Indianapolis Sun.

A Stern Father.
Titus Mamilus Torquatus fought a duel with a gigantic Gaul, Mettius Geminus, in the war of 361 B. C. and slew the latter. Torquatus had been challenged and engaged in the contest contrary to an order issued by his father, the Roman commander, forbidding single encounters with the enemy. For violating this mandate the parent had his son beheaded.

HUMOROUS QUIPS

Baby-Bye Revised.
Baby-Bye,
Here's an insect of the tribe diptera, specific name Musca domestica.
We will watch him,
Fly and I.
There he goes
On his curiously appendaged extremities, leaving a trail of microbes
Over baby's nose.
See him crawl
With his six legs, each having five jointed tarsus, his three sectioned antennae with the marvelous tactile tips waving before him.
Up the wall,
Reeking food with his spongy tipped proboscis, hanging downside up on the ceiling. Yet, on account of his claw-like feet and appendages, soles, he will never fall.
Fly and by,
When we have finished our scientific observations and made a few hygienic suggestions,
Little fly,
Formerly considered harmless, but now classed by scientists and physicians as a disease breeding pest to be exterminated—
You must die!

Figured the Wrong Way.
"Two old salts who had spent most of their lives on fishing smacks had an argument one day as to which was the better mathematician," said George C. Wiedenmayer the other day. "Finally the captain of their ship proposed the following problem, which each would try to work out: 'If a fishing crew caught 500 pounds of cod and brought their catch to port and sold it at 6 cents a pound, how much would they receive for the fish?'"

"Well, the two old fellows got to work, but neither seemed able to master the intricacies of the deal in fish and were unable to get any answer. 'At last old Bill turned to the captain and asked him to repeat the problem. The captain started off, 'If a fishing crew caught 500 pounds of cod and"

"Wait a moment," said Bill. "Is it codfish they caught?"
"Yes," said the captain.
"Darn it all," said Bill. "No wonder I couldn't get an answer. Here I've been figuring on salmon all the time!"
—Newark Star.

Partners in All Things.
A young lawyer in a western town was taken into partnership with his father and soon got the idea that he was the whole firm. He felt into a habit of saying at the conclusion of a successful case:

"Well, father, I won that case, all right."
Finally the old man, becoming irritated by the son's assumption of importance, handed out this advice:

"George, it seems to me that whenever this firm does anything you might give me half of the credit of it. Don't put on so many airs."
The youth took the advice to heart and a few days later rushed into the office with this report:

"Father, I-I mean we—have been sued for breach of promise!"—Popular Magazine.

The Only Way.
He was a very raw recruit and particularly stupid at that. The drill sergeant did not know what to do with him. He had tried patience, he had tried language, all in vain.
"Squid, halt!" yelled the sergeant. "The double rank of the men obeyed but the raw recruit marched gayly on. 'Platoon!' shouted the sergeant.
"Yes, sergeant."
"Did ye ever drive a donkey?"
"Yes, sergeant."
"What did ye say to him when ye wanted 'im to stop?"
"I said 'Whoa,' sergeant."
"Very well. Squad, 'shunt! By the right, quick, march! Left, left, left! Squad, halt—whoa, Fitzmooney!"—The Bits.

A Popular Attraction.
"Yes, she's lecturing against woman suffrage."
"But that's an unpopular side to take in this neighborhood."
"Yes, but she draws tremendous crowds everywhere."
"By her arguments?"
"No; by her clothes."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Rural Idealist.
"Do you think that man will make a success of farming?" asked one real estate agent.
"I'm afraid not," replied the other. "He's too particular about finding a farm in a neighborhood where the fishing is good."—Washington Star.

A Preference.
"Somebody is trying to make people believe that sauerkraut will cause one to live long if one eats plenty of it."
"Well, it seems to me that I'd prefer a short life and a gay one."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not Needed.
"I never judge a woman by her clothes," observed Bilkins.
"No," put in Mrs. B. sarcastically; "a man who gets to as many burlesque shows as you do wouldn't."—Milwaukee News.

They Seldom Do.
"I hope your husband has no secrets from you."
"Not many. However, he never would tell me what he paid for the engagement ring."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

POLICE COURT WAS CENTER OF ACTIVITY TODAY

Judge Simes, City Solicitor Emery and Chief of Police Enlistle were the committee that handled the elaborate collection of talent that appeared in the beauty show in the municipal court today.
When the early morning sun came peeping over the hills there were 41 guests packed away on the soft side of a board. The most of this delegation came from Salem and Newburyport to add life to the firemen's muster and also to lap up what they could before the brass rails. Previous to the session, the chief of police learned that the county farm was crowded with summer boarders and the visitors were released.
However, there were enough left to keep the wheels of justice moving and the days program was as follows:

PERSONALS

Miss Rachel Lamont of Newark, N. J., is the guest of Miss Edith J. Davis.
Postmaster M. M. Murphy, Col. Guy L. Bean and James Hume of Amesbury, Mass., were the guests of Fred C. Newton on Thursday and were royally entertained.

A committee meeting for the Old Home week celebration was held at Grange Hall Monday evening.
Schoolhouse No. 5 is to be newly shingled.
During the heavy thunder storm which passed over here last evening lightning struck the large barn of Samuel Dixon, making a small hole in the roof and killing a valuable Jersey cow. The bolt went out through the western end at about the level of the door tops. The barn was well filled with hay, the cow being tied under one of the scaffolds. It is thought the bolt set fire but the heavy rain put it out. Telephones were also, but out of commission in various places. A sailboat belonging to B. M. Long, hard of Portsmouth, above Kittery Depot, was struck by a bolt and damaged.

Mrs. William Fritz and children of Portsmouth are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spinnery. Samuel Dixon was a visitor in South Berwick Wednesday.

I WONDER

If the ambulance has picked up that packing on the playgrounds yet? Why the Boston and Maine only burns half of the depot lights at night?
Where the police dug up forty one guests that registered at the City hall this morning?
If Hampton or Hampton Beach has escaped any of the electrical storms for the past ten years?
What a well known Fleet street wine clerk is going to do with that handsome hosiery that came from one of the Shoals?
What that packing on the Eureka had to blow out when the boys were so anxious for that $200?
Will they come back again later on after another rest?
If Kittery is not having its trouble over the water as well as Portsmouth?
If Portsmouth and the Boston and Maine railroad won't have to do some talking to get water from across the river at present?
If Inspector Locke thought the bartenders had nothing to do but watch and assist drinks on Thursday?
If the public works department will sell the old water line coming up on Market street for junk?
Why a piece of that prize money for fancy handwork could not be left in this city?
If Captain Muchmore of the Franklin Pierce didn't work for a bit of change?
If that Kittery man who is to participate in the temperance parade in that town Saturday will really fortify himself for the three mile march with a drink or two, as he announced?
Why we cannot have another local muster and make it strictly so by confining it to the bandits Franklin Pierce, True W. Priest and Eureka?
If that combination would not certainly start something?
Where all the fakirs came from on Thursday?
If the police didn't chase them up right and left?
Why this game of tag when they carried the necessary license from City hall?
Why that second boom for an agricultural fair for this city cannot be started?
If Station Agent Grant at the depot did not have his troubles on Thursday?
How often he would welcome the red shirt heroes to the city by the sea?
If the good baseball in the Sunset League and the great interest displayed by the people here, does not mean a good club for this city next year?
Why somebody else wants all the honor in the original idea of this league when Jack Mates has the stuff in his pocket to show what he really did to start it?
If York Beach baseball team is not smothering everything that comes his way this season?
If Dover diamond artists really think they know the game and will they ever go to the beach again?
Why somebody don't put a few new gliss in the clock on the North Church?
Just how long that new Cable between this city and the Isles of Shoals has been going in?
If any of the local river pilots and steamboat men will hit the navy job to be vacated by Capt. Evans, master of tugs?
When Col. Asay the Water street consular Knight and Ward 5 Ajax will start that new political party in the water front Ward?
If Inspector Andrews of the Weights and Measures bureau won't show some of them where they get off shortly?
What the inspector has been doing chasing around Boston and other cities lately?
If he got all the tips he needed on during the heavy thunder storm from scales and yard sticks?

GET OPTION ON OTIS FARM IN HUNT FOR WATER

Mayor Badger and the board of public works, accompanied by consulting engineer Arthur W. Dudley of Manchester have been looking over several places of late for an auxiliary water supply.
The party looked over the Brickett springs at Greenland, the Otis farm on Bankfield road and the Pickering land at Newington. Samples of water the three locations were taken and sent to the state chemist today for analysis. It is understood that the Otis farm is favored above any of the others and that Mr. Dudley who was formerly state engineer says there is a fine supply there.
The owners of the land have given the city thirty days option on the property and the city council may at the next meeting do something regarding a purchase of the Otis property or some other.

Emerson Piano Quality.
Quality in a Piano is absolutely essential, for a poor quality Piano is not a Piano at all. It may be a "furniture piano" if you will, but it is not a musical one—and what is the good of a Piano if it is no musical?
The Emerson Piano seems to grow better every day. The makers of this instrument have lately surpassed themselves. The Pianos that are now coming to us are simply magnificent. The touch, the tone, and the finish are better than ever before. The more difficult you are to please, the better we shall like it, for you cannot but be pleased with these instruments, yet with all their goodness they are sold for a fair price on easy terms.

The Custom of Paying Bills by Check
Has many advantages. It is a convenient way to transact business; no risk is involved by carrying a quantity of currency upon one's person, and the endorsement on the back of each check is a receipt for the amount paid. We welcome small transactions and gladly explain matters when called upon to do so.
